

DAVID R. BARTON CRIMES THRILLS: FIRST OF THE SERIES THE CRIMES AND LOVES OF TONY BARTONI

In this the first book of the series THE CRIMES AND LOVES OF TONY BARTONI you are given insight into the bits of Tonys childhood that set him on his way to being a mariner. Early independence explains his bent toward crime. At 17, exuberant sexual experiences with an older woman starts him on his lifelong path of appreciating most of the possibilities. He is not quite 21 after his adventures in the Air Force on the island of Okinawa. In the following few years his diverse attempts to prosper lead him to want to escape what he has come to see as The Bullshit by becoming a commercial fisherman. Fishing falls short of his expectations and he is tempted by the excitement of serious crime. His life changes with the loss of his boat which leads to unusual circumstances on a horse ranch that provide him with enough money to finally go to the Caribbean; the way to escape all The Bullshit. However, it becomes a longer trip than planned after he picks up a very sexy and mysterious hitchhiker, and they try robbery for the thrill of it.
