

Clelia, after a difficult period, ends up volunteering for an organization that caters to single and battered women. Her life changes completely. Making acquaintances with a woman named Merit and her daughter Sami, she develops a special relationship with the little girl. But one tragedy turns all their lives upside down as Clelia soon finds herself fighting for Sami's rights as a child while protecting her from the harsh, everyday realities of life. Daniela Niglio has a degree in sociology which she earned in 1992. She has published several studies (drug addiction, the elderly, single mothers and Condemned by HIV). Her first novel was a sort of diary of the ironic life she lived with her eldest daughter Veronica, who suffers from Down syndrome. The novel has gotten good sales and was successful. Experts in the field yearned for its second part. Another novel was born from the need to know the true story, where events and people really existed.
