

The Babbling Brook: And Other Poems

In this little book of poetry, Lori Cooper offers a collection of poems that cover a variety of emotions. There is humor, encouragement, nostalgia, and more often than not, downright rudeness. Her inspiration comes from her family that she loves so much, the small farm on which she was raised, and life events that can test the best of us all. With the help of a good bottle of wine, a cat in her lap, and a single night light if the moon is not available, these poems are from the heart of a slightly middle-aged Appalachian woman that says what she means and means what she says.
