

The Isolation of X is a mosaic of interrelated characters seeking happiness, answers, meaning and fulfillment in New York City; among them are thirty-four year old Lloyd Ellis Stone, husband, Graphic Designer by profession, painter by passion who is forced into unknown territory when he finds his mental and physical health undergoing inexplicable changes, and his talent vanishing. There's also Sage Marie Simone, a best-selling author in the Self-Help industry who finds her life beset with bizarre and painful shifts that are only amplified when she finds out her husband and best friends are each going through unimaginable challenges of their own, and after helping millions she can't seem to help herself or the people who matter most to her. This is not a book for everyone; this is book for believers, hoppers and dreamers. This is a book for lovers; of God, of life and of love itself. It's a story about true love, forgiveness, good vs evil, universal laws and our ability to create our own life experiences and a pit-bull that loves comedies. It's a story about the things no one talks about. It's a story about your life.
